- A premium magazine
- A gallery exhibition
- A creative strategist's portfolio
- A subtle touch of analog and tactile aesthetics

Characteristics

Typography First

Not a design that relies on oversized illustrations.

Instead, a design that makes words feel premium.

Example:

“Social Media Strategist & Community Builder”

and underneath it:

“Helping brands, creative communities, and niche businesses turn attention into meaningful growth.”

It should feel like the opening spread of a magazine.

Off-White Instead of Pure White

Avoid #FFFFFF.

Lean more toward:

- Ivory
- Warm beige
- Light stone

Because:

- You enjoy the world of interior design
- Analog photography
- Designer toys
- Luxury architecture

These tones naturally connect with the entire ecosystem of your interests.

Magazine-Style Grid System

Instead of standard sections like:

- About
- Experience
- Contact

A better structure would be:

- Selected Work
- Brands & Communities
- Experiments
- Notes & Insights
- About Me

It should feel more like reading a publication.

Large Photography

The first things that come to mind are:

- Designer toy event photography
- Behind-the-scenes content creation moments
- Analog photography work
- Your workspace

Not stock photos.

Not floating MacBook mockups.

Use imagery that feels personal, documented, and authentic.
